NATIONAL HABEAS ASSISTANCE AND TRAINING COUNSEL

A. DEFINITION

Section 3599(a)(2) of Title 18 of the United States Code requires the federal judiciary to appoint counsel for indigent individuals seeking to set aside a state court sentence of death pursuant to §2254 of Title 28 (§2254). These capital habeas corpus matters are, both substantively and procedurally, among the most complex proceedings brought in federal courts.

In some jurisdictions, there are Capital Habeas Units (CHUs) within the federal defender office that provide representation in capital §2254 habeas corpus matters. In other jurisdictions, or when a CHU is unable to take a case, private attorneys are appointed by the federal court and compensated on an hourly basis. Many of these private counsel lack prior capital habeas experience, and are required to spend substantial amounts of time familiarizing themselves with the intricacies of habeas corpus and death penalty law so that they can provide effective representation. In order to limit duplication of effort, conserve financial resources and ensure that representation in federal capital habeas corpus cases is provided in the most cost-effective manner possible, the Federal Defender Program Inc. (Federal Defender), a non-profit Georgia Corporation located at 101 Marietta Street, N.W., Suite 1500, Atlanta, Georgia 30303, is seeking to contract with an experienced federal capital habeas corpus practitioner to provide, on a part-time and limited basis, consulting, training, and related services to Criminal Justice Act (CJA) panel attorneys, to Capital Habeas Units within the federal defender offices as requested, and to the federal judiciary on a national basis. This practitioner would join the National Habeas Assistance and Training Counsel Project, or HAT, which currently has four (4) other contractors.

- ◆ Advise the judiciary on policy and procedure relating to federal capital habeas corpus representation in particular regions on a national basis;
- ◆ Assist individual federal defender organizations with issues that arise in connection with their representation of petitioners in capital habeas corpus cases, particularly in circumstances where the federal defender lacks capital habeas experience and expertise;

- ◆ Monitor: (a) capital §2254 habeas corpus cases entering the federal courts; (b) habeas corpus legal developments, including preparation of legal and resource impact analyses; and (c) on both a state-by-state and national basis, the need for appointed counsel in capital §2254 habeas corpus cases;
- ◆ Promote the exchange of information and ideas on how to best facilitate the appointment of counsel in capital §2254 habeas corpus cases;
