

Emma M. Greenwood

Emma M. Greenwood is a principal of Greenwood Law Group, PLLC, with offices in New York, New York and Woodstock, New York. She is a National Coordinating Discovery Attorney (CDA) contracted by the Administrative Office of the United States Courts (AO), Defender Services Office (DSO) to provide her expertise and assistance to lawyers in cases involving multi-defendants and complex e-discovery issues. Since 2011, she has been appointed by District Court judges across the country to provide e-discovery management and technology assistance for defense lawyers on such cases. In addition, she has been appointed as a CJA associate defense counsel on dozens of matters in the Eastern and Southern Districts of New York, most of which have a substantial component of e-discovery complexity that require her technical and attendant legal skills and expertise.

In September 2014, Ms. Greenwood was among nine lawyers in the country selected and profiled as a “Legal Rebel” by the American Bar Association (ABA) for her accomplishments and continued work to provide e-discovery assistance to the federal criminal bar, including developing tools that help ensure an efficient e-discovery review process for lawyers and their clients. As an educator, she has worked to raise awareness about a variety of legal topics among students, teachers and legal professionals. She participates regularly as a faculty member in combined federal defender staff and private CJA practitioners’ programs across the country. She continues to be invited to provide assistance and guidance on local and national e-discovery issues, both in criminal matters as well as private civil litigation.
